A: It's a known bug in a non-security related part of the site, that's why it doesn't show up in the "recently fixed" list but is reported in real time on the top of the first page as soon as it appears. If you have to report a bug, you should go to the official site and file a report: bug-contact-stackoverflow.com If you want to have a look at the bug details, I suggest you open the bug yourself and add a comment there. As well you can add a comment to your own post and provide some useful information about the problem. Once the bug is fixed, it will be updated on the "recently fixed" tab. Celebrating a decade of research excellence (1999-2009) and a world of opportunity: a new paradigm in key scientific discoveries. To mark a decade of outstanding scientific discovery, the Department of Neurology was listed as a Department of Excellence by the Medical Board of South Australia in 1999. There have been several changes to department

Which is the right one? P.S. Something to note is that on S3, the API contains the parameter UseCsvEndpoint, which switches the endpoint to be CSV. However, this parameter is not honoured by Glue, so it is not appropriate to use it. You can still use the path parameter to set the path. A: You can have as many paths as you want, you just need to create a different one for each dataset with a different name. You just need to define them as a variable in the SparkSession: spark.conf.set("spark.sql.warehouse.dir","s3a://somestuff.s3.amazonaws.com/mdowired/") spark.conf.set("spark.default.parquet.compress", "true") spark.conf.set("spark.sql.parquet.compression", "true") val Dataset1 = spark.read.json("s3a://somestuff/path/to/file.json") val Dataset2 = spark.read.json("s3a://somestuff/path/to/file2.json") val Dataset3 = spark.read.csv("s3a://somestuff/path/to/file3.csv") val Dataset4 = spark.read.csv("s3a://somestuff/path/to/file4.csv") ... SparkSession(sc).conf.set("spark.sql.warehouse.dir","s3a://somestuff/path/to/") This way you will keep your data structure and you can use the appropriate method for each one. The present invention relates to the field of methods for exchanging information between a portable information terminal and a program processing device provided in a general personal computer, and to a program processing device for realizing this, and to a portable information terminal with which the program processing device can exchange information. In recent years, portable information terminals such as a personal digital assistant (PDA) are becoming widely popular. One of the roles of the PDA is to display information, such as electronic mails (e-mails) and stock information, stored in a server on a display screen. In the past, information that had 570a42141b
