I'm wondering what the best way to display the UITabBarController at the bottom of the navigation stack would be. I'm open to using a different class which can present a tab bar and also present an array of views, but the UITabBarController makes things too easy. A: If you are already using a UINavigationController, you can set it's delegate to be the UITabBarController. -
(void)navigationController:(UINavigationController *)navigationController didShowViewController:(UIViewController *)viewController animated:(BOOL)animated { [self.navigationController setDelegate:navigationController.tabBarController]; } Q: How to use a variable as a set of filenames in a bash-script? I would like to know if I can use the variable "${FILES}" as a set of filenames, so that I can do a loop through each one and execute a function. The code is as follows: FILES=example1.txt example2.txt example3.txt for file in ${FILES}; do one_file=$(head -n 1 $file | head -n 1) two_file=$(tail -n 1 $file | tail -n 1) echo $one_file echo $two_file echo $one_file | $two_file #output file created done The problem is that the error comes up after it has printed the first two files as follows: $./test.sh ./
