Animation The new version of our hit game is just here. Flames of War: Modern Battles is a new 3D strategy game with physics, where you play in the framework of WWII. The game combines a realistic time-scale view of the war with a non-linear progression of battles. You can build your own army or join one of the sides: British, French, American, and German. Each side has its own strengths and weaknesses. Time can be slowed down to view the whole battle over a longer period of time. You can also pause the game in the middle of any battle to save it and resume it later. Using your own strategy and skill, you can achieve victory in any battle. You can choose the victory condition. Victory conditions include the total number of turns (in which it is possible to occupy all territories), number of turns (in which the player has to occupy all territories), victory at a specific point in time, and victory with a certain number of resources. Thanks to the physics of 3D, your tank can be crushed by artillery, a house can be blown up, a tank can be bombed, etc. This game also introduces a new type of battle: skirmishes. The game has four types of skirmishes: short, medium, long, and open. You can play a skirmish on your own or as part of a team. You can choose which units to play in a skirmish. Each unit has its own abilities and abilities and can be upgraded. Your victory will depend on your tactics and skills. All characters, buildings, and units can be captured or destroyed. You can switch from the tactical view to the strategic view. Here you can see what is happening on the map. Each location has its own number of units and production. You can also see a chart that indicates the current position of your units on the map. You can change the 2edc1e01e8
